

9 O'Clock

Noon: Hard Times Build Strong Men

A fundamental trait of men is to produce and to lead others in production. This trait is stimulated by need. A need and a challenge brings out the best in men.

3 o'clock: Strong Men Build Good Times

It is an inherent trait of men to provide and especially when there is a significant need for provisioning. Men, stimulated by the needs of society, will produce what is required to return society to prosperity.

6 o'clock: Good Times make Weak Men

Prosperity begets decadence which allows for sloth. The entropic state of America is increased. Post World War II has seen an extended period of prosperity which has finally resulted in an abundance of weak men.

9 o'clock: Weak Men Make Hard Times

It is 9 o'clock. Government fudged unemployment figures aside, there are seven million (7,000,000) men between the ages of 18 and 35 who are not looking for work and therefore are not in the unemployment statistics. They are living off others either by mooching or by crime. These are weak men. Drug addiction is a significant factor. Weak men allow government to become self serving. Weak men are not practicing Christians. The result of this weakness in men is inevitable hard times.

There are hard times ahead. It is 9 o'clock.
